2020 UT Pop-Up Institutes
Request for Proposals

Submission Deadline: March 25, 2019 (week after Spring Break)
Online Submission Portal: UT Pop-Up Institutes
Pop-up Institutes FAQ

The Office of the Vice President for Research seeks proposals for “Pop-Up Institutes” to operate on the UT Austin campus during the early summer of 2020. Pop-Up Institutes provide funding to support interdisciplinary teams of researchers to rally around a shared research goal on a timescale that’s longer than a workshop or conference, but shorter than the establishment of a permanent organized research structure.

Funded Pop-Up teams will spend the 2019-2020 academic year preparing for a burst of activity focused on a specific area of research. Their Institute will then ‘pop up’ for one month in early summer 2020, providing dedicated resources, time and space for researchers across campus to combine their unique perspectives and distinct skill sets in pursuit of a common goal. Each Pop-Up is expected to produce a research product based on its in-depth preparation for a larger future research initiative.

Common attributes of successful Pop-Ups include:

- Many opportunities for real time, in-person exchange of ideas and discussion
- Cross-disciplinary or inter-disciplinary collaboration: participants cross college boundaries
- Experts from outside UT are convened: to meet with Pop-Up participants, and to provide depth and breadth to the discussion
- Definite research-related goals that explore a problem or an idea. For instance:
  - The outline of a short-term project
  - Laying the groundwork for a long-term research partnership,
  - Ways to share data among traditionally siloed groups
  - Working to solve a problem that affects different areas of the population

Pop-Up Institute research topics:

We invite proposals for Pop-Up Institutes that focus on any area of scholarly inquiry. Priority will be given to topics that have not already been the focus of previous years’ Pop-Ups (see the list of previously funded Pop-Ups here). The focus must be on research.

Funding constraints:

Pop-Up Institutes may not be used to support curriculum transformation, revamping of graduate education programs, or other academic/instructional goals. They also may not be used to support administrative program development, faculty salaries, or research scientist salaries.

Deadline:
Proposals are due no later than 5 PM CDT on Monday, March 25, 2019. Proposals must be uploaded electronically by the Institute Leader or a proxy to UT’s online submission portal.

Eligibility Criteria:

- UT Austin faculty (tenured/tenure-track or non-tenure track) and permanent, senior-level staff researchers are eligible to serve as Pop-Up Institute leaders. An individual may be named as an Institute leader on only one proposal, but may contribute resources to multiple proposals.
- We encourage proposals in any area of scholarly endeavor.
- Pop-Up Institute focus areas and activities must be research-related.
- Institutes must be interdisciplinary.
- One or more tangible deliverables (e.g. a draft proposal, a technical report, a software tool, a journal article draft, a completed compendium) must result from an Institute – this is not a month-long conference or a curriculum development exercise.
- A core of Institute participants must work together throughout the Institute’s run in a shared physical space on campus. The VPR office will help the selected groups obtain space for this purpose. Institutes cannot be “virtual” or decentralized with members participating remotely from their usual offices, labs, etc.
- The Institute must serve some strategic purpose for one or more of the units that contribute participants.
- Participation by non-UT researchers is welcome if their membership in the Institute supports its plans. No more than 25% of the participants, however, can be from outside UT Austin.

Submission Instructions:
Upload the following items to UT’s online submission portal.

1. Proposal Cover Page
   List the institute title, a single Institute Leader and all faculty/Senior Researchers who have made a participation commitment, together with their department/unit affiliations.

2. Non-technical Abstract
   This abstract must be <300 words and should communicate the significance and impact of the Institute in terms that a non-expert can understand. The abstract text does not count toward the 4-page limit for the scholarly justification statement (see Item #3, below).

3. Scholarly Justification (Main Proposal Text)
   May be up to 4 pages long, single-spaced in at least 12 point font with at least 1 inch margins. The justification should address the following:
   - Description of the Pop-Up Institute’s focus areas and research-related activities. In other words, what takes place during your one-month Pop-Up Institute?
   - Rationale for including the disciplines involved.
   - Description of the tangible deliverables (e.g. a draft proposal, a technical report, a software tool, a journal article draft, a completed compendium) that will result from the Institute.
   - A work plan and schedule that outlines work to be done during the 2019-2020 academic year to prepare for the Summer 2020 Institute. To get some idea of the types of organizing activities that Pop-Up Institutes undertake during the academic year, visit existing Pop-Up Institutes’ websites at https://research.utexas.edu/vpr-initiatives/pop-up/.

4. References (optional)
Up to one additional page may be provided for references.

5. Letters of Financial and/or In-Kind Contributions (optional):
Include the following in the proposal:
- Letters of financial support (include account numbers if available).
- Commitment of in-kind contributions (such as administrative support staff).

6. Letters of Time Commitment:
Letters of time commitment from principal participants including explicit commitments to be present for some stated amount of time must be included with the proposal. Note that the extent and firmness of these commitments will be a factor in rating proposals, as will an openness to accepting members beyond the proposing group.

The letters of commitment and references do not count toward the 4-page limit for the scholarly justification statement.

7. Budget Spreadsheet (must use Pop-Up Institute Excel template):
Use the provided Excel template to provide a categorized budget.

8. Budget Justification:
Submit a budget justification (not to exceed 2 pages, single-spaced in 12-point font) explaining the basis for the proposed costs. Letters of financial commitment (item #5, above) should confirm any expenses to be paid by the participating units/departments/colleges.

Budget Guidelines:

Allowable Costs. All Institute costs, including space/facility rental, travel and lodging, supplies, meals, equipment rentals, etc. are allowed. No salary costs are permitted except for institute-specific graduate student stipends, and graduate stipends are permitted only in the VPR budget (participating units may not count graduate stipends toward their contributions).

The VPR will contribute up to $50,000 of the Pop-Up Institute’s total cost. Pop-Up teams may provide additional funding or in-kind contributions from their home units or departments in support of the Pop-Up effort; such additional contributions will be considered favorably in the review process.

Required Contingency. An amount equivalent to 10% of the total Institute cost must be reserved for contingency, to cover unanticipated costs. The contingency is to be expended only with permission by the VPR office and is deducted from the VPR share of the budget. Example: For a total institute budget of $80,000, with a Pop-Up contribution of $30,000 you would provide a VPR budget of $50,000 that consists of $42,000 of categorized expenses and $8,000 (10% of $80K) labeled “contingency.”

Other In-Kind Contributions. In-kind contributions include materials, equipment or services that are given without charge to the program or organization. These items should not be included in the budget. of cash revenues and cash expenditures submitted with proposals. However, in-kind contributions should be noted in the budget justification.

Roles and Responsibilities:
The Institute Leader will be responsible for the research leadership and the development of the research product of the Institute. The VPR’s office will lead the logistical and administrative aspects of the institute. The Leader will develop the Institute format together with the VPR’s office following best practices learned from past Pop-Up Institutes and other interdisciplinary research programs.

Contributed Staff Time:
In addition to providing cash support, VPR office staff will provide a share of the administrative support staff effort to be shared with an equivalent position assigned on the Pop-Up side, such as scheduling meetings, arranging catering, and advertising/promoting Pop-Up events through the VPR website and distribution lists.

Reporting Requirements:
A final report on the Pop-Up’s activities, participants, and outcomes is due to the VP for Research Office no later than October 31, 2019.
