If the invention appears suitable for patenting, OTC engages outside counsel to pursue patent protection for the invention. Patents protect numerous inventions, but copyright and trademarks are used as well.

After successfully negotiating hundreds of deals within the technology transfer realm, OTC has established best practices and expertise in bringing the private sector and academia together in creative, lasting partnerships.